Motor neurone disease (MND) involves progressive degeneration of motor neurons throughout the body. The disease progresses over several years and usually results in death following periods of declining paralysis. There are about 2 people diagnosed with MND each day and about 2 people die each day as a result of MND. There is no single group of people that are more or less affected. There is no currently known cure for MND.

MND Victoria provide care, support and vital assistive equipment to all Victorian's living with MND to help them live better for longer. The Association has also been funding research into cause, treatment and cure for over 2 decades.
